FROM THE PRESIDENT By Debbie Morrow

Hi All,

Please join us for a great day of jamming and a Christmas party 12 to 4 P.M. December 14, 2013 is our Southwest Bluegrass club meeting and jam Just off Main, 113 East Texas, Grapevine, Tx 76051as you know it is the second Saturday each month. It is a comfortable facility both for jammers and spectators with plenty of chairs, tables, couches, etc, and downtown Grapevine is just one block away.

Please be advised there is wheelchair access to the building (rear entrance), but the restrooms are not wheelchair-friendly. There are businesses nearby that should have wheelchair-friendly restrooms.

Since there is an extra room for hard core jammers to retreat to we may have a band scramble that day as well set up on the stage to entertain what we hope is a large turnout of listeners and picker/listeners.

Also, since it is our Christmas get-together we are asking people to bring something for a potluck and that everyone join us so we can celebrate the season and Bluegrass music together. We hope to see you all there and please feel free to bring family and friends.

Happy Holidays,
Debbie Morrow

FROM THE EDITOR;

Merry Christmas to ALL

Let us remember that Christ the Savior

is the reason for the season

Masters of Bluegrass - A Show To Remember -by Bill Kline

Let me start off by acknowledging the volunteers whose dedication and hard work helped everything go so smoothly and ensured that our show was an overwhelming success. Please thank them all personally when you see them.

Volunteers - Thank You So Much

Our final ticket count was 350 of a possible 427 and it was wonderful to see so many seats filled with eyes and ears eager for a taste of Bluegrass music. And believe me they were not disappointed. Without exception, everyone who spoke to me when they were leaving the show let me know that it was incredible and so many indicated they were proud of what the Southwest Bluegrass Club was doing in this regard. Many people were there I hadn't seen in awhile, including former club presidents and charter members, and it was therefore a wonderful reunion as well.

To compare the bands with each other would be like trying to compare a succulent Maine lobster with the finest filet mignon. They were both phenomenal and I don't think either of them could have put on a better show.

Byron Berline used a drum set and in addition to Bluegrass played some tunes with roots in Country and Rock n' Roll. I heard no one complain - not even the most staunch Bluegrass traditionalist. His fiddle and mandolin work was awesome, spirited, creative, and at times reached speeds almost unfathomable on both his fiddle and mandolin. He showed he still has what it takes and more, and I am told by some that they clocked him at speeds reaching 390 beats per minute. His band had energy as great as any band I have ever seen and they were flawless in all regards.

Their variety made for a most interesting program and the other musicians in the band, as well as Byron, showed talent and personality that lit up the stage. Jim Fish was extraordinary on both his guitar and vocals, both technically and in terms of expression. I can say the same for Richard Sharp on bass who provided punch and incredible stage presence. They both really sing well and have class and loads of character. Greg Burgess, a many time Oklahoma State Fiddle Champion, played twin fiddle alongside Byron on many numbers and just like Byron was phenomenal. And although banjo legend John Hickman was unable to attend, Billy Perry did an excellent job filling in, really putting in great picking on so many of their songs. Steve Short on the drums blended well on every song, never overdoing it and even getting a great crowd response on the couple of drum solos he threw in during the evening. I repeat, not even the most hard core traditionalist I knew there expressed a word of disdain for the use of the drums after the performance.

Lou Reid whose band played second is more of a Bluegrass traditionalist, but his band also had fantastic variety that made it an incredibly great performance for all in the audience. There were very few in the audience who did not stay until the end of the show.

In my opinion Lou Reid and Carolina has one of the best overall sounds for a pure Bluegrass band and their vocals are sensational. Lou's talents as a lead singer are hard to top. Smooth, expressive and sometimes reaching way up there where few dare to go. The rest of the band offers unmatched harmony, especially Lou's wife Christy and Skip Cherryholmes, with banjo player Trevor Watson doing solid work as well when called upon. In addition to her perfect harmony Christy also did an excellent job singing lead on She's More to Be Pitied. Lou and Skip sang I'm Blue and I'm Lonesome Too as a duet and it had all in the audience agape from beginning to end, and I don't think there was anyway they or any two people on Planet Earth could have done a better job. I also want to make special mention of Lou's superb vocals on Long Black Veil, the first time I head the band do it.

Their instrumentals were rock solid, creative, and often of boundless energy. Trevor provided rock solid banjo on all of the songs and Skip received resounding applause time and again for his guitar breaks. Lou is one of my favorite mandolin players and he didn't disappoint me on a single song - not on a single note. One of my favorite mandolin intros is played by Lou on the song Amanda Lynn and I was glad to see they included this song on the program.

Both bands were scheduled to play an hour and fifteen minutes each, but great things are hard to stop and they both ended up playing beyond the game plan. No one complained and no one left their seats. Both bands were true Masters of Bluegrass and it was one incredible show that all should remember for a long, long time.

Thank y'all, the bands, the best audience ever, and our sponsors so much. I can't imagine the show having gone any better.

Dennis Hillery Resigning as Newsletter Editor
Effective December 2nd

We now need to have you to share your talents and take over the Editor position. For whoever does agree to take the job of Editor, if they need or want my help, I'll be willing to show them how I produce the newsletter and publish it. All that's needed to do the job is some familiarity with the Microsoft Word program, Or use another program like Publisher if you have one.

All members are encouraged to step forward and volunteer to take on this job of Editor. If you know of someone who might be interested in volunteering, please talk to them and ask them to step forward and check out whether they might take on the job. If you like receiving a newsletter like this, you get to receive it only if someone takes over the job. If there's no Editor, there's no Newsletter. There's a saying about "no free lunches"...

You can contact any of the Officers or Staff listed on page 2 to volunteer.
